"Simone Weil sees another danger in the Jewish move to Palestine:

why create a new nationality? We already suffer from the existence of young nations, which were born in the nineteenth century and are animated by an exasperated nationalism. (One recalls Lamartine's observation on Italian unification: let us not create another Prussia to the southeast of France.)

So one should not give birth today to a nation that, fifty years from now, could become a menace to the Near East and the world. The existence of an ancient Jewish tradition in Palestine is precisely a reason for creating a Jewish homeland somewhere else than in Jerusalem."

On the Lack of Time and Energy:

Simone Weil -

The Need for Roots

There are two obstacles which make the people's access to culture a difficult matter. One is the lack of time and energy. The people have little leisure to devote to intellectual effort; and fatigue sets a limit to the intensity of such effort. That particular obstacle is quite unimportant. At least, it would be so, if we didn't make the mistake of attributing importance to it.

Guide to Healing the Earth

Stress and worry are negative emotions that deplete our energy and distract us from being able to live each moment as it comes. As stress and worry increase, people find themselves one step from escalating emotionally to anxiety, frustration and anger. In that state of emotion, people are more prone to act erratically.

It's not that they don't care about the truth. It's more just that they either feel they're unable to figure out what's true themselves, or that it would take too much time and effort. So the next best thing in their minds is to look towards people they see as an authority on the subject, and to (blindly) trust those people to tell them the truth. When given evidence that they're wrong, in their mind the authority figure of their choice surely knows about this evidence and must have some information that disproves or outweighs it. So even if you prove them wrong and they're unable to come up with any counter arguments, they'll generally walk away thinking "I didn't know enough about the subject to prove them wrong, but they're still wrong". This makes them very easy for the government and the media to control, and very difficult to have a reasonable conversation with.

Jacque Fresco -

You do not change your society by trying to get into the game. You learn to sit back and watch all these things. You tell people things. If they get the message, they take it and use it. If they do not get it they drop it. You watch them go. Then when they trip and fall, you watch them tumble. But you should deliver what you know to these people, as best as you can, to help them see the light.

Tom Brown, Jr. -

The Quest

To play the game of society is to compromise one's beliefs, and to distort the reality of spiritual life. I have found that the best way to transcend the trappings of the game is to stand back and view it from afar, never becoming involved, for involvement is to sacrifice part of the self. Many will not like the fact that you do not play the game, and you will find yourself in a world of mindless critics.

Jacque Fresco -

Conformity or Sanity (1978)

That's why we say here that this society is utterly insane, and if you are trying to make sense of it, you get sick. Best thing to do is get out your notebook, look out the window, make notes, and put it back in your pocket. Do not make any adjustments to it. When somebody says they do not like your painting, you say, 'That's right.' But do not argue with them—then you get sick.

Tom Brown, Jr. -

The Quest

"I took everything I learned, good or bad, and studied it thoroughly. No matter who was speaking, I listened intently. I would drop my self away and listen purely, not allowing any prejudice to slip in and taint the teaching with thoughts or critical analysis. Later, when the teaching was over, I would bring it back to Nature and decide then whether I could use the new information or not."

Comment: [The following was shared with me by my Austrian friend Ressi.]

Q: "I know you can't change the way people think.. So how can I inspire people to get curious about Palestine enough to educate themselves?"

A: The issue is, people who aren't already curious often aren't in order to preserve their perception of the world. If they aren't already curious, it's unlikely they ever will be no matter how hard you try.

From what I've found - this only worked on two people so far - you need to balance politeness and respect for their opinions, while challenging them and their beliefs. Say they care about one thing, but don't care about it when it's in another situation? You've got to challenge the way they look at the situation they're ignoring by using the situations they do pay attention to.

It's a very difficult thing to do, and takes up a lot of brainpower, energy and attention, they won't change or grow more curious about it unless they're already a more open minded person, some people can still change but require a lot more than one encounter in order to do so, meaning you wouldn't be able to inspire their curiosity on your own. It could simply become one of many reasons they choose to try looking at things from another angle many years down the track. Long story short, people are difficult, but try to remain respectful and patient.

One more thing for them: if the person is trying to sway you to their opinion, still listen, even if it's horrifically wrong. You may have evidence against everything they say, you can know they're wrong, but still listen in that moment. Ask questions. If they don't listen in return, it's a good sign they're unlikely to ever do so.

The Origins of Zionism/Zionist Problem:

✂ Vladimir Lenin -

The Position of the Bund in the Party

[October 22, 1903] Can we possibly attribute to chance the fact that it is the reactionary forces all over Europe, and especially in Russia, who oppose the assimilation of the Jews and try to perpetuate their isolation?

That is precisely what the Jewish problem amounts to: assimilation or isolation?—and the idea of a Jewish “nationality” is definitely reactionary not only when expounded by its consistent advocates (the Zionists), but likewise on the lips of those who try to combine it with the ideas of Social-Democracy (the Bundists).

The idea of a Jewish nationality runs counter to the interests of the Jewish proletariat, for it fosters among them, directly or indirectly, a spirit hostile to assimilation, the spirit of the “ghetto”.

Georg Brandes -

Main Currents in Nineteenth Century

It cannot, however, be asserted that Ludwig Börne was peculiarly sensitive on the subject of his Jewish extraction. He often declaimed with the greatest indignation against the oppression of the unfortunate inhabitants of the Ghettos, but he could not do what many expected of him, could not advocate the emancipation of the Jews with greater warmth than other kindred causes. A pursuit of liberty with only that end in view he looked upon as one-sided and egoistic.

Fallen Pillars

It came as no surprise, then, that uptown New York Jews founded in 1906 the American Jewish Committee (AJC). While not specifically formed to oppose Zionism, its establishment offered a different vision. It was an organization designed to assure that its kind of American Jews would be urbane, well educated and socially assimilated. In this quest the elitists of the AJC would try to deal with the huge problems posed by the massive influx of often illiterate and isolated Eastern European Jews in a subtle and soft-spoken way.

[Fact] The Committee's anti-Zionist stand stemmed from the fear that American Jewish support for the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine would compromise American Jewry's exclusive loyalty to the United States. (Rafael Medoff, The Deafening Silence)

Ernst Hanfstaengl -

We talked about this and that, and then Mr. Churchill taxed me about Hitler's anti-Semitic views. I tried to give as mild an account of the subject as I could, saying that the real problem was the influx of eastern European Jews and the excessive representation of their coreligionaries in the professions, to which Churchill listened very carefully, commenting: Tell your boss from me that anti-Semitism may be a good starter, but it is a bad sticker."

As a result of Alexander III's policies, Jews left Russia in large numbers. Most went to the United States, but some went to Palestine... Not surprisingly, Zionism had its strongest following in Russia, but even there it was only one of several nationalist currents in Jewry. Despite the difficult circumstances of life, most Jews remained in Eastern Europe and of those leaving most still preferred the United States.

The indigenous Jews of Palestine also reacted negatively to Zionism. They did not see the need for a Jewish state in Palestine and did not want to exacerbate relations with the Arabs.

[Fact] A study published in 1948 concluded that 80 percent of the displaced Jews wanted to emigrate to the United States.

Zionism emerged just as European nations were dividing Africa. Taking advantage of the European interest in colonization, Herzl sought the backing of European governments in establishing a Jewish state. It is not the moral duty of any country to send men to die helping another country. The help Israel needs is technology and military weapons—and they need them desperately. Why should we help Israel? Israel is fighting not just the Arabs but Soviet Russia, who is sending the Arabs armaments. Russia is after control of the Mediterranean and oil. Further, why are the Arabs against Israel? (This is the main reason I support Israel.) The Arabs are one of the least developed cultures. They are typically nomads. ~~Their culture is primitive, and they resent Israel because it's the sole beachhead of modern science and civilization on their continent.~~

That night, a beautiful summer night, we had a forthright discussion on the Arab problem. 'I don't understand your optimism,' Ben Gurion declared. 'Why should the Arabs make peace?

If I was an Arab leader I would never make terms with Israel. That is natural: we have taken their country.

Sure, God promised it to us, but what does that matter to them? Our God is not theirs. We come from Israel, it's true, but two thousand years ago, and what is that to them? There has been anti-Semitism, the Nazis, Hitler, Auschwitz, but was that their fault? They only see one thing: we have come here and stolen their country. Why should they accept that?

They may perhaps forget in one or two generations' time, but for the moment there is no chance. So it's simple: we have to stay strong and maintain a powerful army. Our whole policy is there. Otherwise the Arabs will wipe us out.'

[May 1, 17] Revised Hamas Charter:

Hamas is of the view that the Jewish problem, anti-Semitism and the persecution of the Jews are phenomena fundamentally linked to European history and not to the history of the Arabs and the Muslims or to their heritage. 1. The Zionists are threatening western leaders in private with economic sabotage if Israel is abandoned by the west.

2. Western leaders know that if Zionists lose in the Middle East and have to evacuate it, Zionists will use their second passports and there will be a mass influx of Israeli Zionists into the Western countries. Western elites are afraid of Israeli Jews because Jews are perceived as an especially revolutionary force, in small doses a propellant positively contributing to progress but in uncontrolled doses a Bolshevik nihilistic bulldozer of a nation's status quo.

In the event of an Israeli exodus to the West, it would become clear that these Israeli Zionists are different from the Jews that historically inhabited Europe for the past 2000 years. These new entering Jews would have experience running a state and have a military-security-intelligence background and competence that would allow Zionists, should they wish, to emerge not just as an economic, academic and media power in the west, but outright military dictators.

Malachi 2:8-10 “But you have turned from the way, and have caused many to stumble in the law: you have made void the covenant of Levi,” said the Lord of hosts. “Therefore have I also made you contemptible and low before all the people, as you have not kept my ways, and are showing partiality [to people] in the law.”

The Sixth Covenant:

[Apr 17, 24] The 6th Covenant was with Mohammed and the message of Islam. It is in the process of being broken right now. The Jews are breaking the 6th Covenant right now, the Christians are assisting them and the Muslims are being tricked into taking the bait to speed up the process.

The Muslim covenant is being broken right now by the ego, inaction and vanity of the Muslim Sunni-Shia groups thinking they are the right group, etc. They are permitting Genocide of the lineage that is meant to be protected under the 6th covenant all for profit and by their inactions. The Zionists can only act out the ushering in of the Dajjal, by forcing the Muslims to break their own covenant. The Covenant was simple: to protect the message, to not split into groups, to protect the line of Ishmael, and to honor the people of other books and keep them in check.

Quran 3:103-105 And hold firmly together to the rope of Allah and do not be divided... And do not be like those who split into sects and differed after clear proofs had come to them.

And remember when We took your covenant that you would neither shed each other’s blood nor expel each other from their homes, you gave your pledge and bore witness. But here you are, killing each other and expelling some of your people from their homes, aiding one another in sin and aggression; and when those expelled come to you as captives, you still ransom them—though expelling them was unlawful for you.

The map shift again and I'm looking through the images of what used to be Israel. At once vibrant in the 21st century, something had happened and all the people living there immigrated to other nations. I suddenly become lucid and I think it must be because of the current Gaza war, but it's much more than that. An omniscient voice tells me that during that time, Israel's leaders took on an expansionist policy in which they became involved in a decades long war that lasted 30 years or more and all the Jewish people eventually left to Europe and other nations, and Israel became an abandoned ghost town, and eventually Israel as a nation collapsed.

The phrase "ipsa historia repetit" keeps humming in the background of my mind. The omniscient voice tells me this was something that also happened during Ancient times, when the Kingdom of Israel attempted to expand its borders beyond Assyria and Babylon and failed, primarily because all the Israelis eventually fled and there was no one left to engage in war with the Assyrians.

By 2035, all of Arabia and parts of North Africa will be overrun despite failed US intervention... The Caliphate in the middle east will be a neutral third party. Over the course of the war, Iran will be invaded by the Caliphate and its Shia populace will fall subject to a massive genocide.

NATO and its allies will declare war on China, while China, Russia, Pakistan, Iran, and North Korea will align themselves with each other. Russia will also invade the rest of Europe, only to be stalled near Berlin in the bloodiest stalemate in history.

[Dec 25, 17] The reason that the Pope and Europe is doing what it is doing is because between 2035-2045 Rome will be the new Capital of a new Islamic Caliphate a new born nation; yes, I will be labelled a racist or a bigot by many for suggesting such a thing. But it is Karma for the families, nations and people Europe has destroyed. A karma debt like that will only last some 15-25 years.

There will be some good things out of it too and you will get the opportunity to experience new cultures, views and finally understand what oppression is to truly appreciate and be thankful for freedoms you have. And I don't mean freedom we have now but real freedom, at times it takes a harsh lesson in order to learn something truly amazing. Yes this sounds more like a doom and gloom, but this in fact will benefit the world economy, open the roads to Europe for the whole world and transpire many great wonders for the world.

1. The Zionists are threatening western leaders in private with economic sabotage if Israel is abandoned by the west.
2. Western leaders know that if Zionists lose in the Middle East and have to evacuate it, Zionists will use their second passports and there will be a mass influx of Israeli Zionists into the Western countries. Western elites are afraid of Israeli Jews because Jews are perceived as an especially revolutionary force, in small doses a propellant positively contributing to progress but in uncontrolled doses a Bolshevik nihilistic bulldozer of a nation's status quo.

In the event of an Israeli exodus to the West, it would become clear that these Israeli Zionists are different from the Jews that historically inhabited Europe for the past 2000 years. These new entering Jews would have experience running a state and have a military-security-intelligence background and competence that would allow Zionists, should they wish, to emerge not just as an economic, academic and media power in the west, but outright military dictators.

I saw scenes from the Middle East, showing how this area of eternal strife would reach a boiling point. Religion would play a large role in these problems, as would the economy. A constant need for outside money fueled much of the anger and hatred that I saw in these boxes.

I could see Israel becoming isolated from the rest of the world. As things worsened, there were images of Israel preparing for war against other countries, including Russia and a Chinese-and-Arab consortium. Jerusalem was somehow at the eye of this conflict, but I am not sure exactly how...

From newspaper headlines that appeared in the vision, I could see that some incident in that holy city had served to trigger this war. These visions revealed Israel as being spiritually hollow. I had the sense of it being a country of strong government but weak morals.

Image after image came of Israelis reacting with hatred toward Palestinians and other Arabs, and I was steeped in the sense that these people as a nation had forgotten God and were now driven by racial hatred.

[Prediction, Jun 12, 25] If Israel succeeds and is not defeated, then Iran will fall and be divided into 6 or 8 smaller states. All of which will be consumed by their surrounding neighbours!

However a 3rd possibility this will bring in all Arabs to attack Israel at once. We will see which nations are loyal to Islam and the Muslim faith, as this is a test of the last covenant for the Muslims. After this their faith, their foundation will either crumble and fade away, or it will unify all Arabs. However, I think option 1 of Israel succeeding is more likely, as there are forces that infiltrated the Arab nations. That would turn members of the Islam faith and the Muslim people, against one another. Nations that will join in on the division of the pie that is Iran now. Oh how Islamic states and Muslim nations, betrayed their own faith and people for a piece of the pie that is Iran!

The destruction of the Muslim covenant and crimes that some of these Islamic nations will now commit against one of their own. Will lead to the events like the one that will unfold in Saudi Arabia soon. So if the Saudis betray Iran, we know the consequences, and after that will follow the destruction of Israel too. I weep for the Muslim people and the Islamic faith.

[Prediction, Jun 17, 25] The only way Israel can make things worse is by using a nuke on Iran, but if they use a nuke on Iran, they will be seen in the world as worse than Hitler, and the condemnation of Israel and the Jewish population will begin globally.

Only way they can not counteract Iran is by nuking it, but if they nuke Iran, Jews will be condemned as a people and a nation for 400 years. Just full on condemnation, kicked out of all systems and becoming a plagued nation and people that no one will ever deal with for at least 400 years. No one wants to start WW3 over a stupid nation like Israel.

That's why Trump is telling them to cut that stupid sht out. Lack of control over such nation and people is why this is happening, and letting them use holocaust as an excuse to get away with shit is another reason why no one stood up against them.

I mean as in they will be condemned to the point, they will feel as if they carry a plague and no one will want to do anything with them. Consider it a double punishment, on them for breaking their covenant. Yes, Israel has nukes and they can use one. But the question is... will Israel and their leadership commit to such an act.

“The 'Crescent' [Islam] will grow dim and its followers will descend into beggary and ceaseless war. And I saw an angel size of a mountain sweep its wing across a city that is like a jewel in the desert sand, and the sand engulfed it shattering many of its stunning beauties and the Earth split swallowing most of the life that once was the hustle and bustle of the grand jewel.

When I asked the guide that stood next to me what it was that caused this, I saw the Tsar standing on the other side of the guide and the guide then said:

"It is the future that awaits these prospering people should they betray one of their own and not act to do anything when their brothers and sisters will cry out for their help from a neighbor that is destroying the line of Abraham's first son".

That is when the guide lifted his hand and swooped it across, the entire region shifted to a mountain and upon it was a city [Jerusalem]. Half the city was engulfed in flames, there were screams of people all around, shots were being fired and explosions were heard.

So I and my family were on vacation in Israel when I was around the age of 13 (I'm 24 today). We stayed in a hotel in Jerusalem and I had a very special dream. One that I have not forgotten after all these years and seem to remember very well. This was my very first night in the city.

[Jerusalem Syndrome]

So the dream starts off with me in eagle vision looking down on a couple of big Mt. Everest-type mountains which stand in a circle. It's very beautiful with clear sunny skies and still clear water in the middle of the mountains. I fly closer to one of the mountains and see a roman or greek balcony/city built into the mountain and see a stone statue of a woman walking down the stone steps to one of the balconies. I know somehow she is important.

I start to get an unsettling feeling. Something about this beautiful stone statue woman is wrong. As she walks down I start to see her playing some kind of pipe instrument in a very seductive and calm way. The skies are no longer clear and the sky becomes red as it becomes sunset.

When she stops at the balcony she starts to sing very loudly over the water and I get a very unsettling feeling. Then suddenly she starts to crack and her body parts start to crumble into the water which at this point are not still anymore. And I hear a loud thunder much bigger than that of lightning and no visible source.

I live in Israel, obviously I know about the whole Palestine-Israel drama, so I'm sure the dream is related to that. The dream started off with me being out of my house, in some place in my neighborhood in an random building, but right after walking there, someone approached me and told me "Dont go up the neighborhood, It's dangerous up there, it could come here aswell".

Right after that, I continued to walk, however I avoided going up the hood because I was afraid of what danger laid up there "Huh, terrorists? Palestinians decided to start war with Israel to rebel against?" thought to myself. In a minute, the guy told me "Quickly, get out of here, go back to the safety of your house", so I quickly went to my house.

For the record, I'm a very pro-Palestinian guy, completely despise ongoing genocide against the population of the Gaza strip and would describe myself as an anti-zionist.

I was hanging out in southern Israel at the home of a family who lived in a house in the desert, with some nearby settlements. I remember talking to them about the events of the 7th of October and how they had to evacuate then return. Suddenly there is a plane in the sky that they exclaimed was a warning and we needed to leave the house immediately.

The house behind us gets blown to pieces by an airstrike, then an aircraft is opening fire on us as we all ran and scrambled. I notice now while I'm running the town in the distance is being bombarded too by aircraft and smoke rising from it. There are aircraft firing at each other in the sky above to.

I look above me and see continuous fighting in the sky between aircraft. The whole time all I hear are the booms of airstrikes and the pop of automatic fire. With the weapons grade of this attack it couldn't have been Hamas, it must have been Iran or even China or Russia that had attacked. It was terrifying.

Many are washing their hands clean, condemning both Hamas and Israel. But it is clear there is a disproportionate power imbalance at play here. Blaming the colonized for resisting against colonisation is essentially whitewashing the occupation. It's saying "1000 dead Israelis is exactly the same as 4000 dead Palestinians".

They may not intend this phrasing, but this is what people are saying when they condemn the attack: that the life of one settler is worth the life of four Palestinians. Every time you say "both sides need to reach an agreement [and Hamas should stop attacking]", you are repeating the above: the life of an Israeli is worth more than the life of many Palestinians. You are implicitly, likely not even realizing it, defending this line.

There is the official discourse of the Arab regimes, some Oslo Accord leaders, and certain European countries that are antagonistic to the resistance. Whether overt or covert, it doesn't make a difference; their discourse aims to be "balanced and objective." They show sympathy towards civilians on "both sides" and make demands of "both sides" to cease bombing civilians.

In numerous statements and positions, two terms are repeated. The first is the term “both sides.” Those who use this term appears to remain equidistant from both sides, convincing themselves [and the audience] of their objectivity, and unbiased by supporting neither side, or polluted by—God forbid—supporting the Palestinian resistance. One side represents the Zionist settler-colonial project, and the other side represents the Palestinian people and their liberation struggle. Therefore, discussing “both sides” at the same level of responsibility in the conflict is nothing more than, at best, a distortion of consciousness [and reality], even if one claims innocence. At worst, it aligns with the executioners, because in the face of ethnic cleansing, crimes against humanity and the genocide of the Palestinian people, neutrality means standing with the executioners and participating in their crimes.

In my dream, the Jews and Muslims tired of the vicious circle of violence between Israel and Palestine, and together, with great religious ceremony and abundant prayer, the existing Al-Aqsa Mosque was dismantled. Much of its "rubble" was respectfully worked into the Mount to lie at rest with the rubble of the Jewish Temple destroyed by Rome in the 1st century. Then, with the site cleared and leveled out, Jews and Muslims worked side by side to build a new building, one that they designed together to serve as both Temple and Mosque, or Mosque and Temple.

I don't see any of the "conventional solutions" as viable. A lack of trust between the two peoples means an one unitary bi-national state will not survive for long as neither side will trust the other enough to accept being governed by them or even sharing power with them, leading to endless political deadlocks and eventually civil wars. We'll just end up becoming a 2nd Lebanon.

On the other hand a two-state solution won't solve this, since it leaves both sides feeling like their pride was hurt and that they "lost" the conflict (or that it's not even over until they get it all), meaning extremist groups seeking to "regain their side's glory" will likely gain more support and neither side will trust the other's to lay down their arms if they would, so any small incident can quickly escalate to a full-blown war between the two states and we'll be back to where we're now but with more casualties. We'll just end up becoming a 2nd, much more violent Cyprus with both sides having the south's unification ambitions.

Any sort of peace agreement has to be built on a basis of mutual trust and belief in a "shared destiny", an acceptance that neither side will disappear and both have to work together and eventually reconcile their narratives, either as 1 state, 2 states or even 20 states. This basis currently does not exist, and it never will as long as people will be raised up believing that "the ones on the other side are evil, inhuman and untrustworthy who only want to hurt/erase us", ~~perpetuating the cycle of distrust and self-fulfilling prophecies of violence.~~

But the reality is quite different. First of all, there is no cycle. There is a slow march towards the extermination, colonization, and ethnic cleansing of the Palestinian people. The 'cycle of violence' is western propaganda. Secondly, for all the talk of extremism on both sides, for the most part everyone involved is making rational choices, and it is peace with the Arabs, not the militancy of Iran, that is allowing for the ethnic cleansing.

It all comes down to the equations: What makes the most sense for Israel? The equation has changed. Now, the Arab leaders want to normalize relations with Israel or have already, the Palestinian issue be damned... So, in fact it is the peace the Arab leaders have made that is allowing Israel to continue the ethnic cleansing of Palestine.

Simone Weil: A Life

"Simone Weil sees another danger in the Jewish move to Palestine:

why create a new nationality? We already suffer from the existence of young nations, which were born in the nineteenth century and are animated by an exasperated nationalism. (One recalls Lamartine's observation on Italian unification: let us not create another Prussia to the southeast of France.)

So one should not give birth today to a nation that, fifty years from now, could become a menace to the Near East and the world. The existence of an ancient Jewish tradition in Palestine is precisely a reason for creating a Jewish homeland somewhere else than in Jerusalem."

[Bishop] Epiphanius of Salamis (Jewish) -
Panarion

Here I can begin my treatment of the subject of sectarianism, and shall briefly explain how it arose.

How else but in the same way in which tribes arose from the proliferation of the different languages, various nations emerged to correspond with each tribe and clan, every nation chose its own king to head it, and the result was the outbreak of wars, and conflicts between clashing nations. For each used force to get its own way and, from the insatiable greed which is common to us all, to appropriate its neighbours' property. So too at this time we have been discussing. Since there had been a change in Israel's one religion, and the scripture of the Law had been transferred to other nations—I mean to Assyrians, the ancestors of the colonist Samaritans—the division of Israel's opinion also resulted.

And then error arose, and discord began to sow seed from the one true religion in many counterfeit beliefs, as each individual thought best, and thought that he was proficient in the letter (of scripture) and could expound it to suit himself.

[Quran] Surah Al-Baqarah 2:79

Woe to those who distort the Scripture with their own hands then say, "This is from Allah"—seeking a fleeting gain! So woe to them for what their hands have written, and woe to them for what they have earned.

[Hadith] Sahih al-Bukhari 7523

Narrated 'Ubaidullah bin 'Abdullah:

'Abdullah bin 'Abbas said, "O the group of Muslims! How can you ask the people of the Scriptures about anything while your Book which Allah has revealed to your Prophet contains the most recent news from Allah and is pure and not distorted?"

Allah has told you that the people of the Scriptures have changed some of Allah's Books and distorted it and wrote something with their own hands and said, 'This is from Allah,' so as to have a minor gain for it. Won't the knowledge that has come to you stop you from asking them? No, by Allah, we have never seen a man from them asking you about that (the Book Al-Qur'an) which has been revealed to you.

The Need For Roots

The Romans were a handful of fugitives who banded themselves together artificially to form a city, and deprived the Mediterranean peoples of their individual manner of life, their country, traditions, past history to such an extent that posterity has taken them, at their own valuation, for the founders of civilization in these conquered territories. The Hebrews were escaped slaves, and they either exterminated or reduced to servitude all the peoples of Palestine.

Gravity and Grace

It is not surprising that little could be expected of such a people, fugitive slaves, conquerors of a paradise which had been fashioned by civilizations in whose labour they had not shared and which they destroyed through massacres.

Martin Buber -

On Judaism

Culture is neither a people's productivity nor the sum total of the works it produces; culture flourishes only where mutually shared work flows from a mutually shared spirit and life.

Richard Coudenhove-Kalergi (philo-Semite) -

Anti-Semitism Throughout the Ages

What are the Jews in reality? They are an artificial nation, a compound of numerous nationalities brought about by a common religion, formed both by a voluntary and a forced separation from the other nations and by the prohibition of mixed marriages, all of which have been the result of religious principles.

This exclusion or rather separation, together with a very definite mode of life prescribed by their religion (circumcision, marriage, dietary laws and so forth), and also the constraint under which they lived and which forced them to develop only in one fixed direction (commerce, chaffering, usury and so forth), have developed in this nation a distinct and definite physical and moral type.

The definition applicable to the Jews would therefore be: "an artificial nation created by religious rules and ordinances and compounded of numerous racial elements."

Otto Weininger -

Sex and Character

Jews, then, do not live as free, self-governing individuals, choosing between virtue and vice in the Aryan fashion. They are a mere collection of similar individuals each cast in the same mould, the whole forming as it were a continuous plasmodium.

Adolf Hitler -

Hitler aus nächster Nähe, p.g. 294

Even if the members of a people are expelled from a country or scattered all over the world, the people do not cease to live. There remains in them, even after generations, the longing for the native soil from which they were expelled, or the longing for reunification.

Selbst wenn man die Angehörigen eines Volkes aus einem Lande vertreibt oder in die ganze Welt zerstreut, dann hört das Volk nicht auf zu leben. Es bleibt in ihm, auch noch nach Generationen, die Sehnsucht nach der Scholle, von der es vertrieben wurde, oder die Sehnsucht nach einer Wiedervereinigung.

Memoirs, Vol. 1

For our part we couldn't do anything because our words didn't count at all to these unfortunate people: They just wanted to go home. Perhaps for some of them there were still relatives back there. In short, they wanted to return to where they had been born, where they had lived, even though they knew that the Germans back in their own country, in Germany, had committed reprisals against Jews.

In spite of that, many Polish Jews, who by the will of fate had ended up on territory occupied by the Soviet Union, were trying by every means legal and illegal to return to the territory where fascism dominated, and where a sorry fate lay in store for them. On the other hand, many people, especially Jews, fled from the fascists over to our side.

Memoirs, Vol. 3

Then I heard even more bitter news from the same Serov. He informed me that there were long lines of people wanting to go to the territory of Poland occupied by German troops, that a registration process was under way, and that the majority of the people in those waiting lines, who had previously fled from Poland's western territories, were Jewish. They were standing there, begging to be included on the list of those being allowed to return to the areas occupied by the Germans. They were even giving bribes to the Gestapo.

Some unfortunate Jew, who had a little house in Warsaw or somewhere else in the western part of Poland, or a tailor's shop, an artisan or a small businessman, would give the Gestapo the last remnants of what he had brought with him when he fled. The Gestapo would do him the favor—put his name on the list—and he would go thanking them for doing that. These people were returning to certain death. The Germans annihilated them, the same way they did with Jews on the territory of Germany. But there was nothing we could do. We could not wage a truthful propaganda campaign because we were bound by the Ribbentrop-Molotov treaty,

But the most horrible thing was that these people wouldn't have listened to us if we had been able to talk to them. They were obsessed with only one desire: to return to their homes and hearths. They weren't thinking about the fact that their home would become a tomb for them, that returning home marked them for certain death. Probably all these unfortunate people perished.

Otto Weininger -
Sex and Character

Without at least some vague hope, the Jews could not have survived, and the hope is that there must be something in Judaism for Judaism; it is the idea of a Messiah, of one who shall save them from Judaism.

Adolf Hitler -

Hitler aus nächster Nähe, p.g. 294

Another example is the longing for reunification in Palestine. Even if higher, political points of view are decisive for this, Jewish politics could not have conceived this plan with a prospect of success after almost two thousand years of dispossession, if it were not for that slumbering longing.

Ein anderes Beispiel ist die Sehnsucht nach der Wiedervereinigung in Palästina. Wenn dafür auch noch höhere, politische Gesichtspunkte ausschlaggebend sind, so könnte die jüdische Politik doch diesen Plan nach fast zweitausendjähriger Enteignung nicht mit Aussicht auf Erfolg gefaßt haben, wenn jene schlummernde Sehnsucht nicht wäre.

Vladimir Solovyov -

A Short Tale of the Antichrist

The whole of the Jewish nation rose as one man, and its enemies were surprised to see that the soul of Israel at bottom lived not by calculations and aspirations of Mammon but by the power of an all-absorbing sentiment -- the hope and strength of its eternal faith in the Messiah.

Otto Weininger -

Sex and Character

Every other race has had some special watchword, and, on realising their watchword, they have perished. The Jews have failed to realise their watchword, and so their vitality persists. The Jewish nature has no other metaphysical meaning than to be the spring from which the founders of religion will come. Their tradition to increase and multiply is connected with this vague hope, that out of them shall come the Messiah. The possibility of begetting Christs is the meaning of Judaism.

Eschatology:

[Saint] Nilus the Myrrgusher -

We say: why did Christ incarnate from the Jewish race and not from another race?

Говорим: почему воплотился Христос от рода еврейского, а не иного рода?

"Because there was no other race like it, ungrateful; therefore, Christ incarnated from the Jews to adorn this Jewish race. But ingratitude clouded the Jews, and they didn't recognize the salvation of mankind, which was incarnated in their midst. So now, people who have become darkened, falling into the darkness of insensitivity because of their many cares and worldly concerns, have cast off the most beautiful flower of monastic life and have strayed into the most useless concern for the flesh.

Потому, что не нашлось другого рода, подобного ему, неблагодарного; посему и воплотился Христос от евреев, чтобы благоукрасить сей род еврейский. Но неблагодарность омрачила иудеев и не познали они спасения человеческого, Которое воплотилось в их среде. Так и ныне помрачившиеся люди, впав во тьму безчувствия из-за многопопечения и житейских забот, скинули с себя прекраснейший цвет монашеской жизни и уклонились в одно бесполезнейшее попечение о плотском.

The egregors [thought-forms] of churches [synagogues] form from the dark-ether radiations that issue from the mass of humans belonging to some church, radiations released by every person who has not reached the level of sanctity. The radiations arise

It is easy to imagine how tragically the Indian people's historical course would have been altered if, instead of that saint, a person of a self-willed nature, like Mussolini or Stalin, had at that decisive minute stepped forward as leader – a so-called strong leader, a master of demagoguery and political intrigue, who masks his despotic nature behind fulsome speeches about the people's welfare!

Here I can begin my treatment of the subject of sectarianism, and shall briefly explain how it arose. How else but in the same way in which tribes arose from the proliferation of the different languages, various nations emerged to correspond with each tribe and clan, every nation chose its own king to head it, and the result was the outbreak of wars, and conflicts between clashing nations. For each used force to get its own way and, from the insatiable greed which is common to us all, to appropriate its neighbours' property.

The Parallel Lives

It was the thirty-seventh year, counted from the foundation of Rome, when Romulus, then reigning, did, on the fifth day of the month of July, called the Caprotine Nones, offer a public sacrifice at the Goat's Marsh, in presence of the senate and people of Rome.

Suddenly the sky was darkened, a thick cloud of storm and rain settled on the earth; the common people fled in a fright, and were dispersed; and in this whirlwind Romulus disappeared, his body being never found either living or dead.

Description of Greece

Cleomedes, pelted with stones by the citizens, took refuge in the sanctuary of Athena. He entered a chest standing in the sanctuary and drew down the lid. The Astypalaeans toiled in vain in their attempts to open the chest. At last, however, they broke open the boards of the chest, but found no Cleomedes, either alive or dead. So they sent envoys to Delphi to ask what had happened to Cleomedes.

The response given by the Pythian priestess was, they say, as follows: "Last of heroes is Cleomedes of Astypalaea; Honor him with sacrifices as being no longer a mortal." So from this time have the Astypalaeans paid honors to Cleomedes as to a hero.

The Return of Prophet Elijah: (and Enoch)

[Saint] Ephrem -

But before these things be, the Lord sends: Elias the Thesbite and Enoch the compassionate, that they may proclaim reverence to the race of men, and openly announce unto all the knowledge of God, that they believe not nor obey the false one through fear, crying out and saying, "A deceiver, O men, is he; let no one believe in him." But few are those who shall then obey and believe in the words of these two prophets.

[Saint] Hildegard -

But I will defend my two Witnesses, Enoch and Elias, whom I have reserved for those times. Their mission will be to combat the man of evil and reprimand him in the sight of the faithful whom he has seduced. They will have the virtue of operating the most brilliant miracles, in all the places where the son of perdition has spread his evil doctrines. In the meanwhile, I will permit this evildoer to put them to death; but I will give them in heaven the recompense of their travails.

[Saint] Nilus the Myrrgusher -

People will say to Enoch and Elijah, "Why then are those who received the seal thankful to Antichrist?" Enoch and Elijah will say: "They are thankful, but who is really thankful? It is not the people who give thanks, but only the seal itself. What is their thankfulness? It is that Satan has entered into them, is conceived in man's feeling, and man does not know what has happened to him. The one who is sealed with the imprint of Antichrist becomes a demon; even though he asserts that he feels neither hunger nor thirst, he craves food and drink even more, and not only more, but seven times more than you.

Be patient for only a little while. Do you not see rather that he who receives the seal of Antichrist will not live (he is dead in spirit, and eternal suffering awaits him)? Is it possible you too desire to perish with the seal in eternal suffering, there to be with those, who were sealed with it? - where there is weeping and gnashing of teeth?"

If you are hungry and need food, endure for a short time and God, seeing your patience, will send you help from on high; you will be livened again (fed full of life) with the help of the God in the Highest. If you do not show patience, however, you will receive the mark of this unclean king, and will the regret it."

[Monk] Rabanus Maurus -

"Or, we may apply it to the last times of the Jewish Church, when many Jews having turned to the preaching of Enoch and Elijah, the rest filled with the spirit of Antichrist shall fight against the faith.

So that part of Judæa where Archelaus rules, signifies the followers of Antichrist; Nazareth of Galilee, whither Christ is conveyed, that part of the nation that shall embrace the faith.

Galilee means 'removal;' Nazareth, 'the flower of virtues;' for the Church the more zealously she removes from the earthly [matter aspect] to the heavenly [consciousness aspect], the more she abounds in the flower and fruit of virtues."

[Saint] Nilus the Myrrgusher -

"Why did the thirty-petaled flower (i.e., poza, the rose) not blossom on any useful tree or beautiful branch, but blossomed on a thorny tree and barren branch? Because there was no other tree so barren and useless. For this reason, such a flower blossomed to adorn this tree with its barren branch. What need is there for this beautiful flower on such a tree? If it had blossomed on another tree, we would say, "The tree itself is beautiful, and that is why such a beautiful flower blossomed on it."

It was in the year 1461, when the Hussites were undergoing a cruel persecution, that a pious man, at Prague, called Georginus, was brought to the rack, and stretched upon the instrument of torture, became, in an extraordinary manner, insensible to pain, and to all external sensations... He related a dream that he had had during the torture:

"I thought that I was in a green and beautiful meadow, and in the middle of it stood a tree, on which grew a great deal of fine fruit; and on the tree were perched many birds, who ate of the fruit, whilst they sang melodiously.

And amongst the birds I beheld a youth, who, with a small rod, appeared to regulate their movements, that none should presume too far or get out of his place; and I saw three men, who kept watch over the tree."

He described the appearance and persons of these men; and it's a remarkable fact, that 6 years afterwards, the same number of men that he had seen in his dream, and answering to the same description, were appointed to rule over the Church.

Given the choice of rising further and reuniting totally with the Godhead (En Sof), or remaining with and teaching the rest of humanity, Enoch chose the latter out of his love for humanity. The True King of Israel: Tsar of Russia

A Short Tale of the Antichrist

When the Emperor transferred his residence to Jerusalem, secretly spreading among the Jews the rumor that his main object was to bring about a domination by Israel over the whole of the world, the Jews proclaimed him as their Messiah, and their exultation and devotion to him knew no bounds. But now they suddenly rose, full of wrath and thirsting for vengeance. You see, the Jews, who regarded the Emperor as a true and perfect

Israelite by blood, unexpectedly discovered that he was *not even circumcised. The same day all Jerusalem, and next day all Palestine, were up in arms against him. The boundless and fervent devotion to the savior of Israel, the promised Messiah, gave place to as boundless and as fervent a hatred of the wily deceiver, the impudent impostor. The whole of the Jewish nation rose as one man, and its enemies were surprised to see that the soul of Israel at bottom lived not by calculations and aspirations of Mammon but by the power of an all-absorbing sentiment -- the hope and strength of its eternal faith in the Messiah.

Before Joachim, it was largely taken for granted that the Antichrist would be Jewish. He was resolute that the greatest Antichrist, the one most other people would consider to be the Antichrist, would be a Westerner and a Christian. Antichrist and his followers would all be hypocritical Christians who professed Jesus’s teaching but refused to live their lives according to them. His message to his fellow Christians was clear: do not blame other religions and peoples for the rise of the Antichrist, for the worst Antichrist will come from the ranks of Christianity itself.

Contra Celsus [Isaiah 52:13-53:8]

I remember that once in a discussion with some whom the Jews regard as learned. I used these prophecies. At this the Jew said that these prophecies referred to the whole people as though of a single individual, since they were scattered in the dispersion and smitten, that as a result of the scattering of the Jews among the other nations many might become proselytes. In this way he explained the text: "Your form shall be inglorious among men" and "those to whom he was not proclaimed shall see him" and "being a man in calamity".
